

Master of Second Language Teaching Mission Statement

The Master of Second Language Teaching (MSLT) program supports the department's mission of preparing effective second language instructors for K-16 classrooms. It also supports and contributes to the University's mission to engage in research to meet social challenges and to encourage cultural diversity. The MSLT program takes a practical and multi-disciplinary approach to culture, language, literacy, and pedagogy. Students choose their own areas of focus depending on their language specialty and career objectives. Our mission is to prepare students to be effective cross-cultural communicators and language teachers in a wide variety of professional settings and to explore thought, expression, and values in a global context.
